

Happy Holidays

Have a Great Thanksgiving and a Blessed Merry Christmas!

As you have those conversations – answering those questions about what IS is and what you’re going to do for an internship or a career...

Please dazzle and delight everyone --

This is your great journey of faith! Despite the challenges – IS Worth It!

Find moments to share – How Valuable IS is ! Especially share what and where you feel you wish to be.

Don’t be surprised if your family and friends point you to family and friends who are doing things related to technology...and even to those who would love to offer you an internship, part-time job, or full-time employment. “Wait, you use Python to do what? I didn’t even know you were studying that?”

Remember – The very best thing you can do (beyond praying and believing) is to find someone who’s living your dream and talk to them.

If you’re still uncertain about your dream. Find someone who is living her or his dream and ask how they decided to do data analytics, programming, UX, cybersecurity, consulting, project/product management, etc.? If they were to do it all over again – would they change anything?

Ask what they believe about the future of all things IS-ish?

They too had a journey of faith. And they’re still living it.

Dazzle and delight – Share enthusiasm for what they are doing!

It’s entirely possible that you’ll refine your dream – and you may even come back from the holidays with referred IS roles and opportunities – choices and decisions to make in moving forward.

Embrace the abundance mentality! There are and will be more than enough opportunities ahead!
The Lord is mindful! Show your gratitude and love for everyone around you!

As always --
Keep smiling
Reid
